Justice McCrea Has the Bedell Boys Arrested.

The Fight Between the Rival Publishers Again in Court-

The Bedell boys, Edwin, Arthur and George, formerly publishers of the Westchester Times, a weekly, and the Advocate, a daily, and who now issue a weekly paper called the Advance, are in hot water once more. Arthur Bedell was a prisoner in the Harlem Police Court this morning charged with assaulting Civil Justice William G. McCrea, who holds court in Morrisania, and with his brother Edwin he was charged with forcibly entering the premises occupied by the North Side Publishing Company, at One Hundred and Seventy-fifth street and Third Counter charges of attempted burglary were made against Justice McCrea.

The Bedell boys once owned the West chester Times. Indeed they claim that they own that interesting publication at present. In April, 1891, they formed a copartnership with the late Commis-sioner Louis Heintz and called it the copartnership with the late Commissioner Louis Heintz and called it the North Side Publishing Company.

A daily paper called the Advocate was issued for the purpose of securing Heintz's election as Commissioner of Public Works for the America District.

Heintz was a Democrat. The Bedells are Republicans. Editorials favoring the latter party soon began to appear in The Advocate, and the Heintz party ousted the Bedells from the Company. Ever since that time the neighborhood of One Hundred and Seventy-fifth street and Third avenue has been an interesting place.

The Bedells took possession of a stable in the rear of the North Side Publishing Company and issued The Advance. The Advocate died with Commissioner Heintz, but the Westchester Times was still continued by the North Side Publishing Company.

The Bedells have once or twice entered the premises of the latter company, and lately a man has been employed to watch the place. Last evening the watchman discovered that two strangers had entered the place and had nailed the front door fast.

Later Arthur Redell came around and told the watchman to go home. The watchman, however, notified Morris Lieberman, one of the members of the North Bide Publishing Company, and he went up early this morning to find that the doors and windows had been nailed fast.

holds licitudes the stable, and that so long as the Bedeils continue to occupy that portion of the premises no rent will be paid.

Arthur Bedeil was held in 1300 bail by Justice Burke for examination on the charge of assault.

Justice Burke would not entertain his counter charge against Justice McCrea, holding that Justice McCrea had a perfect right to use force to protect his property, but that there was no evidence that any force had been used.

Elwin and Arthur Bedeil were both held on the charge of forcibly entering the premises of the North Side Publishing Company, and will be given an examination this afternoon.

firm of Henry Sheldon & Co., of 100

It is stated that Charles Sheldon who is reputed to have been living very extravagantly for several years, made a demand upon his father for money, and that being refused he went to several large creditors of the firm, and in revenge informed them of the shaky condition of affairs, which prevented the firm from getting extensions on its ions and thus precipitated the failure. The liabilities are stated by Mr. Sheldon to be $29,099, distributed as follows:

don to be $299,000, distributed as follows:

Baring, Magoun & Co., $250,000; Merchants National Bank, $50,000; Bank of the Manhattan Company, $50,000, and a fourth creditor, whose name is not given, $10,000.

The assets are said to amount to less than $10,000, including a small stock of coffee in store and afoat, and some open accounts. Mr Sheldon has lost everything, it is said, except the house in Pierrepont street. Brooklyn, which is valued at $20,000, and which stands in his wife's name.

Mr. Shelden himself attributes the fallure to his work action, but ways that he is willing to share the responsibility. The present stringency in the money market had a good deal to do with the collapse. The business had been carties on at a loss for several years, and the firm had a large amount of paper outstanding, most of which is said to be in the hands of the two banks mentioned.

It is denied that the firm's difficulties were due in any way to the recent un-successful attempt to corner the market for Rio coffee by foreign houses.

On the pier he met an affable, olly tongued young man, who asked him his destination and, on being told, inquired if he wanted to earn 500 on the passage. The Scotchman naturally replied in the affirmative.
